

Term Project Instructions – Module 1

Overview:

The student will create a project that will span all five modules of this course. The project will examine one theological topic of the student's choosing from a number of different perspectives, following a general theological method learned in this course. This project will be composed of five separate assignments with different due dates and differing weight in the final project grade. Please see the course schedule and/or syllabus for the particular due dates and course evaluation percentages.

Part 1 – Choosing a Topic:

For the first activity, all you will do is to choose a general category of topic. In the next assignment, you will narrow the topic down to a specific question or issue. But for this assignment, all you should do is choose and report a general area of investigation. Ideally you will choose a topic about which you are personally curious, or which is currently more relevant to your life and ministry. Ideally, your chosen topic will be both. If you need suggestions or examples of suitable topics, you should read through the Table of Contents of the Grudem Textbook for ideas.

Briefly write out the general topic on which you would like to research and write in future assignments, and submit this document to a mentor or your group for comment and suggestions.
